

The North Carolina State Archives Presents:

Civil War Sesquicentennial Lecture Series

North Carolina State Archives Civil War 150 Committee Events—2012

"Second Mondays" lecture series presents topics about the Civil War given by the staff of the Office of Archives and History section and take place the second Mondays of each calendar quarter. Lectures will be presented in the auditorium of the State Archives and Library building from 10:30-11:30 a.m. Other building locations will be announced.

February 20: Changing Tides: The Burnside Expedition, Chris Meekins, N.C. State Archives

May 14: Sacred Bodies: Caring for the Dead During and After the War, Bill Brown, Debbi Blake, Chris Meekins, N.C. State Archives

August 13: Bringing in the Dead: The North Carolina Civil War Atlas and Death Study, Josh Howard, Office of Archives and History, Research Branch

November 19: Confederate Conscription Laws: A Primer, Bill Brown, N.C. State Archives

The North Carolina Civil War 150 blog is a space for collecting all news, events, and observances related to the American Civil War Sesquicentennial commemoration at the North Carolina State Archives, with additional information from other Department of Cultural Resources observances. The blog features "First Wednesdays," a series that presents a unique document from the collections of the N.C. State Archives on the first Wednesday of each month and discusses how that archival document relates to other events in the North Carolina during the Civil War. On the blog you can also read excerpts from Civil War diaries and journals, view public documents and photographs and learn the stories behind them. The blog also contains: a timeline of North Carolina and national events beginning in 1860; links to other Civil War websites; the Digital Civil War Collection which hosts digitized Civil War materials from the State Library of North Carolina and the N.C. State Archives; and, "Find Your Civil War Ancestors," an online exhibit describing research methods Archives staff members used to track their Civil War ancestors.

Civilwar150nc.wordpress.com
www.nccivilwar150.com

2nd
Mondays

