A letter from Thurso says, "It is with pleasure that I can contradict the report of 300 people having embarked for America at this port. Such an emigration was talked of and I believe intended, but those people are now settled again in their own country. It was generally reported likewise that 600 families had been removed from the parishes of Lairg and Rogart in Sutherland to make way for sheep farmers. The report is not entirely groundless, but means have been found to accommodate those little tenants at home."
