[COPIES OF] BRITISH RECORDS IN THE NORTH CAROLINA STATE ARCHIVES, 1585-1783(+)

Accession Information: Gift of the Carolina Charter Corporation through the Colonial Records Project
Arrangement: By fond, series, and piece (microfilm arranged in arrival order)
Preliminary Description to July, 1979, by Robert J. Cain
Finding Media: Handlists, Card Calendar, and MARS data entry prepared on a continuing basis.

PRELIMINARY GUIDE TO THE BRITISH RECORDS COLLECTION

By Robert J. Cain

The Collection designated "British Records" in the North Carolina State Archives is comprised of photocopies of British documents relating to the history of North Carolina. In general they span the time from 1585 to 1783, although a few records, such as Loyalist claims, go beyond the latter date. The work of locating and photocopying such documents is a continuing program begun in 1969 by the Colonial Records Project of the Division of Archives and History and is intended to be more comprehensive and wide ranging than previous efforts. Transcriptions of records from England are included in The Colonial Records of North Carolina (10 vols., 1886-1890); further transcriptions were acquired for the Archives in the 1920s and are available there as a separate collection called the "English Records." Finding aids for the English Records, including a calendar, are available in the Search Room. The new collection of photocopies is called the "British Records." Although photocopies of the documents previously transcribed are included, the British Records collection is composed primarily of material not previously copied. Most of the items photocopied to date are from the Public Record Office, London, which is the main governmental archives of Great Britain. Additional major sources have been the manuscript collections in the British Library (formerly the library of the British Museum), and the National Maritime Museum, Greenwich. Other British repositories are at present being searched.

Finding Aids

Two types of photocopies are available -- xerographic and microfilm -- and they have separate finding aids, although their subject matter is not separate. The type of photocopy was determined by the amount of North Carolina material in each volume or box of documents and by the photocopying policies of the record repositories. It is the purpose of this guide to direct the researcher to the proper finding aid.

Pages 1-49 of this guide concern records of the Public Record Office. There is a general introduction to each record group (Admiralty, Colonial Office, Treasury, etc.); within the record group are various classes; and within the classes are the series from which photocopies were made. Sometimes the class description, in addition to its general description given in full capital letters, includes a more detailed description indicating types of documents (letters, reports, etc.) and range of subject matter to be found within that class. (See, e.g., Admiralty, Class 1, on page 1 of this guide). Sometimes the general description sufficiently indicates the contents of the class to make further description unnecessary (e.g., Admiralty, Class 98, on page 8 of this guide). The series description narrows the descriptive process further and is preceded by numbers indicating the range of pieces (volumes, boxes, or bundles) from which photocopies were made. (e.g., Admiralty, Class 1, 3814-3820 is a series of volumes, "Letters Relating to the Colonies, 1697-1790"; photocopies were made from selected volumes within that series.) Following the series description is an indication of type of photocopy (xerox or microfilm), and type of finding aid (xerox cards, xerox handlists, or microfilm handlists) to be consulted, both for a detailed description of each document and for its call number. Again, it is the purpose of this guide to provide sufficient description of the various groups, classes, and series to enable the researcher to decide whether or not he should consult the detailed finding aids for those particular records.

Pages 50-53 of this guide discuss photocopies from the British Library and National Maritime Museum. No handlists of photocopies from the British Library are available at present, although the photocopies themselves are. Handlists are available for photocopies from the National Maritime Museum.

Although only the North Carolina State Archives call number is needed in order to request an item in the British Records, the original references assigned by the Public Record Office, British Library, or National Maritime Museum have been preserved for the information of researchers.

A. XEROX

A series of finding aids describe the xeroxed documents, giving dates and other descriptive matter for each one. These finding aids are in two forms: cards, for items accessioned through 1975, and handlists, for items accessioned since that year. The cards and the handlists do not duplicate each other, therefore the appropriate finding aid, as indicated on pages 1-53 of this guide, must be consulted for a description of the document in which the researcher is interested. Both cards and handlists are located in the Archives search room.

There are two sets of descriptive cards: the first is arranged according to Public Record Office classification; the second, the calendar, is arranged by date of the document. In the calendar, cards for items of uncertain date have been placed at the beginning of the approximate month of year. Cards for items spanning several weeks or months within a calendar year are filed under the earliest date. Cards for items that span more than one year are filed separately under "Multi-dates." No cards have yet been prepared for items accessioned since 1975, but eventually this will be done, and a subject and autograph file will be prepared for all cards. Until then the handlists, arranged by Public Record Office classification, serve as the finding aid for those items.

Each xeroxed document has been identified with a State Archives number, such as 74.697.1-4. The first part of the number is the year in which the item was accessioned (1974); the second part is the serial number given the item (number 697); the third part is the number of xerox pages in the item. (If the number is preceded by an "X", such as X73.1202.1, it is an oversize xerox copy.) The call slip for ordering British Records should read "British Records," followed by the full identifying number.

B. MICROFILM

British Records microfilm is identified and described briefly by reel in the microfilm catalog in the microfilm room under "Miscellaneous -- Foreign Archives." (British Records microfilm should not be confused with microfilm of the English Records transcriptions and four reels of microfilm of original documents collected before 1969, which are identified as "English Records" and are described in the English Records finding aid.)

A more detailed description of the contents of most of the microfilm is available to the researcher in the British Records microfilm handlists. These handlists give the call number of the reel (e.g., Z.5.101N), and describe each document thereon which is related to the history of North Carolina, including its folio or page reference. Since the Public Record Office does no selective microfilming but films an entire piece, a number of reels contain material extraneous to the history of North Carolina; such material is not described in the handlists. The handlists are available in the Search Room and also in the microfilm room.

There is at present no subject or name index to the British Records collection; therefore, the brief, general descriptions of the various series from which copies were made is an important tool for the researcher using these records. Below are listed and described all the series of records at the Public Record Office, British Library, and National Maritime Museum that were found to contain documents relating to North Carolina and that currently are available for use in the Archives. Following the description of each series is an indication of the types of copies made (xerox or microfilm), and where to find a detailed listing of the items copied (cards or handlists), with their call numbers.

1 Descriptive handlists are not yet available for certain reels; these are indicated in this guide.
To summarize the procedure outlined above:

1. Use the summary description in this guide to identify records that appear relevant.
2. Consult the finding aid(s) indicated (xerox cards and/or handlists, or microfilm handlists) for a description of individual documents and their call numbers.

Form of citation:

The following is suggested as a form of citation for the British Records:

- Microfilm: Adm.1/485, fs. 61-61b, photocopy in British Records Collection, Microfilm reel Z.5.170N, North Carolina Archives.

Restrictions on use:

All material from the Public Record Office is under Crown Copyright. Persons wishing to publish such documents should direct a request to The Keeper, Public Record Office, Chancery Lane, London WC2A 1LR, England, and indicate the type and amount of material to be published and the form of publication (journal article, facsimile reproduction, etc.) Items from other repositories may also be under copyright, and it is advisable to write the repository concerned before publishing.

Because of copyright restrictions duplicate copies of microfilm reels cannot be furnished by the N. C. Archives. In exceptional circumstances a limited number of xerox copies may be made for purposes of research.
This record group comprises the archives of the two bodies responsible for the administration of the Royal Navy—the Board of Admiralty and the Navy Board—and of certain related bodies, such as the Greenwich Hospital. The Admiralty Board was concerned mainly with matters of policy, while the Navy Board attended to such details as provisioning, maintenance, hiring of transports, and the like. The first naval vessel stationed at North Carolina was H.M.S. Swift, ordered there on October 15, 1741, but between 1696 and 1783 several hundred warships were in North Carolina waters.

Class 1: SECRETARY OF THE ADMIRALTY'S DEPARTMENT, INCOMING LETTERS.

This large class consists of a number of series, and those from which copies were made are described below: letters from admirals, captains, secretaries of state, and various departments of government to the Board of Admiralty; reports of courts martial; letters concerning the colonies; etc. Subjects relating to North Carolina include pirates; privateers; illicit trade; vessels on North Carolina station; the Cartagena expedition; merchant vessels in distress from hurricanes or enemy action; convoys (with lists of merchant vessels convoyed); admiralty courts; defense of the colonies; the Stamp Act crisis; Sir Peter Parker's expedition (1776); the capture of Wilmington (1781); prizes taken; prisoners; intelligence reports; Loyalists; and action at Ocracoke in 1813.

305-314. Admirals' Letters, Leeward Islands, 1745-1788. Xerox — see cards and xerox handlist.

Class 2: SECRETARY OF THE ADMIRALTY’S DEPARTMENT, OUT GOING LETTERS.

This class is composed of various series of entry-book copies of letters, orders, and instructions from the Board of Admiralty and its secretary to admirals and captains, and letters from the same to various departments of government and private individuals, such as merchants. Subjects relating to North Carolina include impressment in America; protections from impressment and permissions to proceed given to merchant vessels; convoys for trade; naval stores; ordnance; colors to be worn by vessels; mail packets; pirates; foreign privateers; illicit trade; vice admiralty courts; courts martial; deserters; defense of colonies; vessels on North Carolina station--their deployment, upkeep, and provisioning--; prizes taken; Indians to be conveyed to England and back; care of sick and wounded seamen; seamen's wages and Greenwich Hospital tax; coastal surveys; the Cartagena expedition; the Stamp Act crisis; Sir Peter Parker's expedition (1776); troop transports; and American prisoners.

363-374, 1746-1751. Lords of the Admiralty's Letters to Secretaries of State, 1695-1797.
502-581. Secretary of the Admiralty's Letters to Public Offices and Admirals, 1746-1784.
689-751. Secretary of the Admiralty's Common Letters, 1746-1784.
1045-1062, 1755. Letters relating to Admiralty and Vice Admiralty Courts and Business, 1663-1790.
1331-1342. Secret Orders and Instructions, 1745-1789.
1725-1744. See 1-115 above.
1745-1751. See 169-259 above.
1755. See 1045-1062 above.

Class 7: SECRETARY OF THE ADMIRALTY'S DEPARTMENT, MISCELLANEA.
This class contains various registers, lists, reports, memorials, petitions, returns, etc. Subjects relating to North Carolina are described below.

ADM. 7/75-103, 630. Register of Passes, 1662-1784. (Volumes compiled to record passes issued to merchant vessels for voyages to the colonies and elsewhere. Information about each vessel includes its name, tonnage, number of crew and guns, name of master, intended voyage. All entries of voyages to North Carolina have been copied.) 38-92, 94, 96, 98, 100: Microfilm -- see microfilm handlist. All other copies are xerox -- see xerox handlist.

137-140. Register of Foreign Passes, 1729-1784. (Entry books of passes allowing British and colonial vessels to trade to Portugal, Spain, Africa, and elsewhere. Numbers of these vessels were involved in trade with North Carolina.) 138: Microfilm -- see microfilm handlist. All other copies are xerox -- see xerox handlist.

333-342. Memorials and Reports, 1695-1787. (Topics relating to North Carolina and the North American colonies generally, include convoys for merchant vessels; courts of vice admiralty; naval officers; impressment; officeholding; piracy; trade; naval stores; passes; prizes.) Xerox -- see cards.

565. List of Transports, 1776-1782. Xerox -- see cards.

569-575. Abstracts of Ships' Journals, 1736-1795. (Compilations from logs showing the locations of various naval vessels, at sea and in port. All entries relating to North Carolina have been copied.) Xerox -- see xerox handlist.

592. Tabular Statements of Exports and Imports, Colonies, 1768-1769. Xerox -- see cards.

Class 8: SECRETARY OF THE ADMIRALTY'S DEPARTMENT, LIST BOOKS. This class is made up of monthly returns showing the station assignments of all naval vessels in commission. (Volumes 1 to 5 in this series were examined in order to compile a list of vessels of possible relevance to North Carolina, but only one monthly return was copied, to illustrate the form of the entries.)
ADM. 8/1-58. List Books, 1673-1783. Xerox -- see cards.

Class 17: ACCOUNTANT GENERAL'S DEPARTMENT, ACCOUNTS, VARIOUS.

ADM. 17/2-6. Admirals' and Commanders in Chief's Contingent Accounts, 1742-1817. Xerox -- see cards.

Class 33: ACCOUNTANT GENERAL'S DEPARTMENT, SHIPS' PAY BOOKS, TREASURER'S, SERIES I, 1669-(1783).
This class consists of various details concerning manning of vessels of the Royal Navy. Data include names of crew, date and place of entry and discharge, whether volunteer or impressed, wages due, etc. Pay books for selected vessels on the North Carolina station were copied. See also Admiralty 36, below.

ADM. 33/1/1-703. Treasurer's, Series I, 1669-1778. 200, 282, 284, 311, 442: Xerox -- see xerox handlist. 535: Xerox -- see cards.

Class 34: ACCOUNTANT GENERAL'S DEPARTMENT, SHIPS' PAY BOOKS, TREASURER'S, SERIES II, 1766-(1783).
This class is similar to Admiralty 33 above. The pay books of only two vessels at North Carolina were copied.

ADM. 34/1/1-855. Treasurer's, Series II, 1766-1785. 6: Xerox -- see cards. 82: Xerox -- see xerox handlist.

Class 36: ACCOUNTANT GENERAL'S DEPARTMENT, SHIPS' MUSTERS, SERIES I, 1688-(1783).
This class is similar to Admiralty 33 and 34 above, but includes more vessels than either. In addition to information concerning the crew and marines, there are entries of various persons, such as governors and their retinues, given passage to North Carolina; civilian workmen employed in repairing and refitting the vessel; pilots taken on and discharged at North Carolina; loyalist refugees taken aboard for protection or passage out of the colony; and American prisoners taken during the Revolutionary War.

ADM. 36/3764-10428. Series I, 1688-1808. 7807: Microfilm -- see microfilm handlist. All other copies are xerox -- see cards, and xerox handlist.
Class 49: ACCOUNTANT GENERAL'S DEPARTMENT, MISCELLANEA, VARIOUS.
Topics relating to North Carolina include transports and naval stores.

ADM. 49/1. Documents relating to Expenses in America and West Indies, 1756-1766.
Xerox -- see xerox handlist.

2. Documents relating to Transports and Tenders Employed during the American War, 1775-1782.
Xerox -- see cards.

3-6. Musters of Transports, 1776-1781.
Xerox -- see xerox handlist.

9. Papers relating to American Loyalists put on board Transports, 1783-1786.
Xerox -- see xerox handlist.

36. Papers relating to Contracts, 1740-1810.
Xerox -- see cards.

119-121. Prices of Stores, 1660-1800.
119: Microfilm -- see microfilm handlist.

125. Papers relating to Transports, 1740-1800.
Xerox -- see cards.

126-127. Register of Transports, 1754-1794.
Xerox -- see xerox handlist.

169-172. Miscellaneous Papers, 1700-1830.
Xerox -- see cards.

Class 50: ADMIRALTY AND SECRETARIAT, ADMIRALS' JOURNALS, 1702-(1783).
This class consists of entry books of administrative proceedings of the admirals commanding in North America: orders to captains of vessels stationed at North Carolina; general orders; appointments; commissions; correspondence. Subjects include provisioning, Manning, trade, the Stamp Act, movements of vessels, and smuggling.

ADM. 50/1-413. Admirals' Journals, 1702-1911.
122: Xerox -- see xerox handlist.
All other copies are xerox -- see cards.

Class 51: ADMIRALTY AND SECRETARIAT, LOG BOOKS, ETC., CAPTAINS' LOGS, 1669-(1783).
This class consists entirely of log books kept by captains of naval vessels, both at sea and in port. Information includes details on weather, manning, discipline, provisioning, trade, repair and refitting, entertainment of guests, battles.

All other copies are xerox -- see cards.

Class 52: ADMIRALTY AND SECRETARIAT, LOG BOOKS, ETC., MASTERS' LOGS, 1672- (1783).
This class consists of log books kept by masters of naval vessels, both at sea and in port. Information duplicates much of that in Admiralty 51, above, but often includes more in navigational details.

ADM. 52
Masters' Logs, 1672-1840.
1281, 1493, 1494: Microfilm -- see microfilm handlist.
All other copies are xerox -- see cards.

Class 68: GREENWICH HOSPITAL, ACCOUNTS, VARIOUS.

ADM. 68/89-143.
Receiver of Sixpences: Annual Account, 1732-1783.
(A seaman's hospital was established at Greenwich, England in 1694. In order to support this enterprise, sixpence a month was deducted from every seaman's wages, both in Britain and the colonies. This series comprises the annual accounts of the Receiver of Sixpences, and includes the amounts received from various ports in North Carolina.)
Xerox -- see xerox handlist.

194-204. Names of Ships and Amounts Paid for Sixpences, 1725-1784. (These volumes are lists of merchant vessels trading at the port of London. Information given includes name of last port, date of arrival, name of vessel, of what place, tonnage, size of crew, name of master, number of months' service per man.)
195, 204: Xerox -- see xerox handlist.
All other copies are microfilm -- see microfilm handlist.

Class 110: VICTUALLING DEPARTMENT, OUT-LETTERS.
Xerox -- see xerox handlist.
The archives of the Colonial Office constitute a most important source for all aspects of American colonial history, since they include the records of the Board of Trade and the Secretary of State, the two bodies chiefly responsible for colonial administration before 1783. The Board of Trade, or "Lords Commissioners for Trade and Plantations", was established in 1696, replacing various governmental bodies concerned with the colonies. From 1696 to 1783, when the Board was abolished, it and the Secretary of State exercised in effect a concurrent jurisdiction over colonial matters. The records thus created are rich in details of virtually every aspect of colonial history.

Class 1: COLONIAL PAPERS, GENERAL SERIES, 1574-1697.
This is an "artificial" class composed of letters, reports, etc., removed from other classes of records in the Colonial Office series in preparation for their publication in Noel Sainsbury et al., eds., A Calendar of State Papers Colonial. Material relating to North Carolina includes letters and other documents concerning the colony at Roanoke Island; plans for settlement in the 1630s under the charter granted to Sir Robert Heath; the grant of Carolina to the Lords Proprietors and their administration of the colony; Culpeper's Rebellion; trade.

Class 5: AMERICA AND WEST INDIES.
This large and highly diverse class of letters, reports, returns, petitions, memorials, proclamations, acts, journals, minutes, orders in council, instructions, commissions, warrants, patents, shipping returns, and printed material (newspapers, etc.) is made up of various series relating to specific colonies, including North Carolina (volumes 286-357), a series relating to proprietary colonies (volumes 1257-1301), and a number of series, arranged topically, concerning the colonies in general. Among the most valuable of the documents in this class are the letters and reports from colonial governors to the Secretary of State and Board of Trade.

Topics relating to North Carolina include naval and maritime matters; trade; proprietary government; courts of vice admiralty; collection of customs; immigration; tobacco; naval stores; piracy; Indians; officeholding; wars, including the American Revolution;
Loyalists; the Heath grant and various claimants thereunder; boundaries; landholding; westward expansion; postal service; currency; taxation; Culpeper's Rebellion; Cary's Rebellion; etc.

Also included in this class, and in other classes of Colonial Office papers, as well as in the Treasury papers (described below), are shipping "returns" or "lists". Shipping returns usually were compiled quarterly at various ports in America and the West Indies, and though scattered and incomplete are extremely valuable for a study of North Carolina's commerce, agricultural and other production, and shipbuilding. The form of these returns varies, but the following data are usually included: a vessel's name, dates of entry into and clearance from the port in question; names of master and owner(s); tonnage, number of crew and guns; colony where registered, with date of registration; place where built, with date of building; the last port from which the vessel cleared, and the port to which it was bound; and its lading.
