[World War I]

Collection Number: No collection number.

Title: WWI Panoramas Collection

Dates: 1916-1919, 1922-1923, undated

Creator: U.S. Army; U.S. Navy; and various professional photographers.

Abstract

The World War I Panoramas Collections is composed of panoramic photographs documenting U.S. military units containing predominately North Carolina servicemen, or which include specific North Carolina servicemen in the photographs. The bulk of the collection features: North Carolina National Guard units in training camps and along the Mexican Border during the Mexican Border Crisis involving Pancho Villa between 1916 and 1917; various units of the 30th Infantry Division (“Old Hickory Division”), U.S. Army, during World War I; scenes of Camp Greene in Charlotte, N.C.; and various units of the 81st Infantry Division (“Wildcat Division”) during World War I. The majority of the photographs were taken at the following military camps: Camp Jackson, S.C.; Camp Sevier, S.C.; Fort Bragg, N.C.; Camp Greene, N.C.; Camp Wadsworth, S.C.; and Camp Lee, Virginia.

The collection also features panoramic photographs of all-Black U.S. Army units, which include unidentified North Carolinians. These photographs are some of the only photographs of Black North Carolinians during World War I in the holdings of the State Archives of North Carolina. The collection also features photographs of North Carolina units on ships or the docks in Virginia and South Carolina between June and July 1919, when the servicemen returned to the United States from Allied occupation duty in Europe following the official end of World War I.

Physical Description: 114 panoramic photographs

Restrictions on Access: There are no restrictions on accessing this collection.

Restrictions on Use

The original panoramic photographs have been withdrawn from use by researchers, due to their rarity, size, and fragility. Digitized copies of the original panoramas are available online in the digital WWI collection of the North Carolina Digital Collection, a joint effort of the State Archives of North Carolina and the State Library of North Carolina. Researchers can access the photographs by searching the panoramic photograph number in the digital WWI collection. Anyone wishing to see the original panoramas should contact the Military Collection Archivist or the Head of Special Collections to be granted access.

Preferred Citation

[Panoramic photograph number], WWI Panoramas Collection, WWI Papers, Military Collection, State Archives of North Carolina, Raleigh, N.C.

Acquisition

The panoramic photographs have been acquired by the State Archives of North Carolina since 1918 through to the present time from a variety of sources. Many of the photographs were removed from individual servicemen's collections and added to the WWI Panoramas Collection. The acquisition history is noted in a separate document for each of the panoramic photographs, and maintained in the collection's records folder in the State Archives Registrar's office. All panoramic photographs within this collection have been signed over to the State Archives and accessioned into their collections.

Separated Material

There are eleven oversized panoramic photographs that are too large to fit within map cases, which are being stored at the oversight of the State Archives Conservator. Those oversized panoramas are noted in the photograph descriptions within the finding aid. These photographs managed by the Conservator are numbered as follows: MilColl.WWI.Panoramas.21, 23, 34, 35, 45, 59, 62, 65, 83, 86, and 87.

MilColl.WWI.Panoramas.103 is being stored in a custom acid-free folder on top of the Military Collection Map Case in the State Archives Stacks on 3B.

Processing Information

The original WWI Panoramas Collection was reprocessed in July and August 2017 to improve the description of the collection, and better organize the materials for improved long-term preservation storage. In 1964, Maurice S. Toler and John R. Woodard of the North Carolina Department of Archives and History prepared a finding aid for the "World War I Papers, 1903-1933," which consisted of thirteen series of records. This was the first known formal organization of the World War I materials, and a basic finding aid for these papers completed to the box and item level was finalized on June 30, 1964. Two additional series were added after this point for miscellaneous types of archival materials. The state's WWI panoramas that were in the collection to that time, had been organized originally under the “series” labeled “Panoramic Photographs,” and as series fifteen (written in Roman numerals). A number of the panoramas were folded, cut, or rolled, and stored in unidentified sizes of boxes until the 1990s.

The collection was previously stored in a scattered manner in over-filled, oversize Mylar archival plastic L-sleeves, with ten panoramas stored in each folder. This caused significant bulk in the folder, and offered no buffer for the surfaces of the photographs from rubbing against over panoramic photographs. All of the panoramic photographs acquired prior to 2014 had the image numbers on self-adhesive mailing labels, which were attach on the lower right-hand corner of the backs of the photographs. As this did not match archival practice and the printed ink on the labels was fading, the labels were carefully removed from all of the photographs. The original L-sleeves were discarded, as they were not adequate preservation storage for the photographs.

To reduce bulk within the archival folders, the collection was divided according to the size of the individual panoramas within custom-sized panoramic photograph archival folders. No more than 8 photographs were stored per folder. The original numbers of the panoramas were retained. All of the photographs have been numbered with a soft HB No. 2 pencil on the back top right corner (where possible) of the panoramas, according to the individual image number. For example, the number “MilColl.WWI.Panoramas.42” should be interpreted as “WWI Panoramas Collection photograph number 42.” The identification of these images has been created in the finding aid, but not written on the photographs themselves. Historical research was conducted to provide dates and descriptions of the images where none was written on or attached to the photographs.

Between 1994 and 2014, prior archivists had written in pencil on the back of many of the photographs with descriptive information and collection storage information. This information was either inaccurate, had changed with new storage options, or was already described in the finding aid for the collection. These pencil notations were carefully erased, while leaving period WWI-era handwritten notes untouched on the photographs. Some notations were made by prior archivists in pen, and the notes cannot be removed.

Two panoramic photographs that were determined not to fit within the Military Collection’s WWI Papers time period coverage were removed, and placed in the Miscellaneous Military Panoramas Collection. Both photographs were from the late 1920s. The photographs are MilColl.WWI.Panoramas.73 and MilColl.WWI.Panoramas.90. Their numbers were kept in the collection inventory, and will be used for future WWI panoramas that are acquired and need an image number. Other preservation steps taken during processing this collection include: interleaving large acid-free archival bond paper sheets between each panorama in their folders, and placing single panoramas in oversize folders if significant preservation issues were present.
